

Practitioner Points:

- CFT/ compassion-based interventions appear to be effective in improving self-esteem
- Transdiagnostic concepts (such as low self-esteem and compassion-focused therapy) should be considered in supporting people with their mental health